Platform Mediumship and Psychic Detective Work

A child who was kidnapped by her drug addicted mother, a woman who disappeared without a trace, a couple who were murdered by their own son and their bodies dumped in a wilderness area... these are but a few of the cases investigated and solved by Psychic Detective, Medium and Clairvoyant Ron Scarbrough, also known as Orion.

During his lecture Orion, a former newspaper reporter, will recount details of these, and other cases where he has helped bring peace and solace to the bereaved families of those who have passed on and, at the same time has helped bring to justice those who have committed these crimes.

In addition to sharing information about his work as a Psychic Detective, Orion will use his ability as an experienced medium to bring messages of hope, peace and even humor from those who are beyond the veil to members of the audience.

“You never know who will come through during these open forum sessions,” Orion explained. “It could be someone’s mother, father, sister, brother, aunt, uncle or grandfather. It could be that friend you were close to as a child who crossed over many years ago. Once the door is opened, friends and loved ones gather, eager to communicate with those of us who remain on this side of the veil.” The information that Orion receives during stage sessions and passes on to those assembled can often be as specific as a joke shared only between a specific audience member and the person who has passed on.

Orion, who worked for many years as a journalist and feature writer, was guided to his current work as a medium and clairvoyant nearly twenty years ago by friends who recognized his abilities before he did. “It wasn’t where I planned to go with my life,” Orion explained, “But once I did my first reading, I knew this was what I was destined to do.” In retrospect, Orion realized that his reporter’s “nose for news” was simply another manifestation of his psychic abilities. “There were dozens of times during my years as a reporter where I drove around at random and ended up in the middle of the biggest story of the year.” Orion said.

Orion’s work as a Psychic Detective seemed inevitable given his past history. “For most of my journalistic career I specialized in police and crime reporting and got to know many officers well as I followed them through their investigations. Even then I realized I could see things that they could not as we both looked on the same crime scene.” Orion added that it also didn’t hurt that he has three brothers, now retired, who were police officers themselves.

During private sessions, Orion is able to get into much greater detail with his clients concerning future events affecting their lives and information coming from their friends and relatives on the other side. “The future is not necessarily carved in stone,” Orion said. “I try to do more than simply give them the hard facts. I try to help those who come to me navigate through the rocky waters we all must face from time to time.”

In addition to open forum and in-person sessions, Orion has also done many readings on radio and television as well as readings by phone and over the internet with his clients from all over the world.
