Opening Psychic Ability

“As a karmic pre-disposition, some individuals have more natural psychic ability than others just like some people have talents of music or painting. Yet in varying degrees, everyone has the potential to be psychic. It’s just that some of us have to consciously learn how to do it.”

One of the primary steps in this process of developing our psychic abilities is to overcome our fear of being wrong (which is often buried deep in the subconscious). We must relearn to trust our intuitive selves and reclaim the innocence of our childhood.

There was a point in my own personal development when I had established a step by step process of asking for inner guidance that I totally committed myself to trusting what ever information I received. At the same time I understood and accepted that it would not always be correct. When the information was not true, it did not mean that I couldn’t trust what I received next time nor did it mean that I was inadequate.

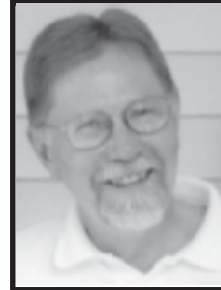

I have a friend, Joe McMoneagle, who is considered to be one of the world’s foremost remote viewers. He was one of the original members of the government’s ultra-secret psychic spy unit called the Stargate Program. Joe runs about an eighty percent success rate. He says when he is wrong, it has no emotional meaning for him and that he always goes into his process expecting to be right. So, one of the primary steps in developing psychic abilities has to do with releasing our emotional history of being made to feel wrong or not good enough.

Another step in the process of becoming psychic is knowing how to stop thinking and create an opening to receive new information.

If someone were to say to you, “Stop thinking!” it is likely you would begin to think about not thinking. Our normal free flowing associative thoughts and talking to our selves just leaves no room to receive. Stopping the inner dialogue opens you into the direct perception of Knowing that is more than deductive reasoning and analytical logic.

Healing Meditation

Come Early for the Healing Meditation.

Besides the wonderful opportunity to get centered and release stress individually, we will also start each month's meditation with a group intention for healing the Earth and her inhabitants. We will create a beautiful gridwork of Light and through guided meditation, Love will be directed in many directions for the highest good of all. Come experience the Wow! Acts of self-love and selfless acts of giving to others.

Gifted Energetic/Sound Healer, Spiritual Medium, and Life Coach/Mentor Suzette Foster Anicetti will lead this meditation. You may learn more about Suzette and her work at her website www.suzettefoster.com or by emailing her at suzette@suzettefoster.com.

This is in the same building (Peace Hall) as the Clara Barton room, where we held meditations at UUFR in years past, but the Emerson room is on the lower level of that building.

If coming from the front parking lot, go down the steps between the two buildings. There's an entry door on the right side of Peace Hall. Go in this door and down the hall, and the Ralph Waldo Emerson room is on the left at the end.

Early meditation will be held from 6:30 P.M. until 7:00 P.M. in the Ralph Waldo Emerson room of the Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Raleigh (on the lower level of Peace Hall). Please be on time.
