Psychic Detective ~

How to Help Solve Crimes with Your Intuitive Ability

Intuition is an innate sense that we all possess, each with our own strengths and weaknesses. We can become psychic by focusing on this inherent sense to develop and sharpen it with awareness and practice.

“Our intuition,” says Sherrie Dillard, “when developed, blossoms into extrasensory or psychic perception, revealing to us a rich vast inner reservoir of possibilities and potential.” Through this “inner resource of knowing, seeing, and being,” we may gain access to the entire world by “turning within,” she says.

In the first half of this double header, you will learn your psychic or intuitive “type”—mental, emotional, physical, or spiritual. Then you’ll have a chance to exercise your intuitive muscles to help solve a missing person case.

Sherrie has seen angels, animal spirits, and ethereal visitors, and has had precognitive dreams, since she was a child. Growing up in a conventionally religious household, however, she kept her psychic experiences to herself, and even tried to deny them. That began to change when, at 19, she was persuaded by the spirit of a recently deceased mother to give a message to her bereaved son. It was the first time she considered that her psychic ability could be beneficial.

Her interest in psychic detective work began a few years before she became a professional psychic, when a young girl she knew was reported missing; she had intuitive impressions and dreams about her, but did not yet know what to do with them. Many people receive intuitive insights into missing persons and other unsolved crimes—and, she says, any of us can, with a little encouragement and intuitive development, contribute in a positive and powerful way to helping others.

Sherrie has been featured on television for her work as a psychic detective and medium and is a frequent radio guest. In 2005 she worked with Raleigh police to solve the high-profile May 2002 murder of Stephanie Bennett; two weeks after she identified a suspect, he was arrested when his DNA confirmed him as the killer.

A professional psychic, medium, counselor, and teacher for over 25 years, Sherrie Dillard, M. Div., serves an international clientele from her practice in Durham and has been a frequent participant in SFF’s annual Psychic & Healing Fairs. She is dedicated to her own intuitive-psychic and spiritual journey and believes that intuitive development is a spiritual refinement process that manifests in one’s life as joy, connectedness to all of life, and an inner conscious communion with the divine.

Her 2008 book, Discover Your Psychic Type: Developing and Using Your Natural Intuition, describes the four basic intuitive types and includes an extensive quiz to discover your own—similar to the exercise she will do with us in her program. A new book to be released in June 2010, Intuition and Love: A Psychic’s Guide to Creating Lasting Love, takes the four intuitive types into the arena of love and relationships.
