The Enneagram: Insight into Personality

The Enneagram of Personality acts as a kind of mirror to reveal features of our personality that normally are invisible to us and can be extremely useful as a source of self-knowledge. From the Greek words ennea (nine) and gramma (something written or drawn), it is a model of human personality represented by nine interconnected personality types, such as Reformer, Individualist, Peacemaker, and so on. These are represented by the nine points of a geometric figure called an enneagram, which also indicates some of the connections among the types. (Via Wikipedia.)

Join us for a dynamic and entertaining exploration of the Enneagram types, sure to invite everyone into a deeper understanding of the Self, with Rev. Denise Schubert.

Based on an ancient Sufi typology of nine primary roles, and earlier teachings of G. I. Gurdjieff, the Enneagram of Personality was principally developed by Oscar Ichazo and Claudio Naranjo, beginning in the 1950s. It is a system of spiritual psychology, with the recognition of one's type tantamount to a spiritual awakening.

Once real balance has been restored to the personality structure, the Enneagram can help us to orient ourselves to the higher spiritual and psychological qualities that each type has in abundance. Thus, at its highest, the Enneagram invites us to look deeply into the mystery of our true identity. It reveals that we are not our personality, but something more—a spiritual being who has lost contact with his or her true nature.
